About Our Organization

The Northern California Fire Mechanics' Association is a section of the California Fire Chiefs' Association. Our membership consists of government and private sector mechanics, who service and maintain fire service vehicles, emergency vehicles and equipment. Our goals are to inform the fire service mechanic, provide a forum for maintenance problems and solutions, and provide training.

We hold bi-monthly meetings in February, April, June, August, October and December. Through these meetings we provide updated information on current maintenance issues and the latest equipment available. It also is an opportunity for mechanics to share their problems and solutions to problems that they are experiencing.

Member Vendors are also present to assist and inform the members on the latest products and maintenance information.

Training classes are presented to update mechanics and help prepare for re-certification through Continuing Education (CE) credits when applicable.

We are proud of the accomplishments of our individual and vendor members and the contributions they make to the Northern California Fire Mechanics' Association.

REPORTS

STORIES FROM THE STREETS

Scenario:

It's zero dark thirty. One of your aerials is responding to an emergency on the freeway. It is raining and visibility is not the best. As your aerial apparatus tops the hill your driver sees it.....too late. Right in front of the driver is a mattress, which they run over. The aerial quickly grinds to a halt. The air brakes set and a small electrical fire ensues.

Say what? It was just a mattress. But, wait..... The springs, padding, cover and other components of the mattress have wrapped around the driveshaft aft of the pump. The pump gearcase is cracked/broken. The air system tanks are damaged and pulled away from the mounts. The fuel lines are severed. The electrical lines are damaged badly and wrapped into the mess. The frame rail "C" wrap flange is bent. The driveline is so wrapped with mattress spring and supports that it takes a mechanic crew of two, two days to remove the driveshaft and assess the damage.

The apparatus is 12 years old and not worth repairing. It is eventually scrapped.

If I had not witnessed the aftermath, and without pictures, it would be hard to believe.

INDUSTRY INFORMATION

SCFMA Members.

On the subject of "Brake Inspection Certification" card and/or form.

I have enclosed the following information for your reference.

The first attachment is the Code of Federal Regulation Part 396. Please take specific note of 396.25, Qualification of Brake Inspectors.

This section seems to imply that proof/evidence that your mechanics that are engaged in completing commercial brake inspections "shall" have fulfilled the requirements of this section.

It appears that proof of some type of card or form from the employer demonstrating that their employee has done so is required.

In the second and third attachment I've enclosed shows an example from JJ Keller of this form and card.

I am still doing research on what type of external training, other than an ASE T-4, may be required.

On behalf of my agency, we invested in this product from JJ Keller for about $18.00.

My interpretation of this standard is that there is not an option to opt out of doing this!

My plan is to qualify my mechanics knowledge, skills, training and their ASE T-4 certification by using this product.

Once the forms are completed, I will place a copy of the form and their card(s) in their employee file jackets. Employees will be issued the card from me, as their Fleet/ Fire maintenance Supervisor.

More to follow when information becomes available!

Thank you

From "Hard Working Trucks" eMagazine:

FCA is suing Cummins for $60 million over a selective catalyst reduction (SCR) system that both the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency and the California Air Resources Board say is defective and can lead to an increase in emissions.

EPA and CARB have been pushing for a recall on 2013 to 2015 Ram 2500 pickups with a 6.7-liter Cummins diesel which both agencies say has an SCR that can malfunction in the presence of moisture and lead to increase in nitrogen oxide, according to Reuters.

The $200 million cost to recall and repair roughly 130,000 effected trucks has FCA crying foul. The automaker reports that it's already spent $60 million so far to fix the problem in 42,000 trucks and now wants Cummins to cover that cost.

Cummins has countersued FCA over what it claims is a lack of cooperation in the recall which it says has negatively impacted Ram customers and Cummins. The Indiana-based engine manufacturer recorded $4.5 billion in revenues in the second quarter of 2016, down 10 percent from the year prior, according to investopedia.com.

According to transcripts from U.S. District Court in Detroit, FCA reports that it's willing to cooperate in the recall.

"What we are not willing to do is bear the cost of it," FCA attorney John Berg said.

A warning light in Ram trucks will indicate when there is a problem with the emissions system. If not addressed soon, the pickups will go into limp mode, according to Berg.

Cummins reported that while the two companies are disputing over financial responsibility of the recall, they are working "collaboratively to resolve an issue with a third party after treatment system purchased by (Fiat Chrysler) as quickly as possible on behalf of our customers," Cummins spokesman Jon Mills said.

FCA representative Mike Palese said the automaker is committed to working with Cummins "to ensure that any necessary repairs are carried out effectively and efficiently."

According to court documents, Cummins would like the recall to begin next month and have work completed by early next year.

For all you forward thinkers, where is our diesel emissions standards heading?:

WASHINGTON, D.C., 31 July 2012 | In a press release dated 12 June 2012, the International Agency for Research on Cancer (IARC), which is part of the World Health Organization (WHO), declared that diesel engine exhaust is carcinogenic to humans.

The International DME Association views this announcement as an opportunity to highlight the significant benefits of DME – dimethyl ether – when used in transport as a substitute for diesel fuel. DME combustion is literally smokeless, produces low NOx emissions, and lower well-to-wheel greenhouse gas emissions than diesel fuel. DME can be used as fuel in diesel engines, gasoline engines (30% DME / 70% LPG), and gas turbines. Only modest modifications are required to convert a diesel engine to run on DME and meet the most stringent international emissions standards without the need for the SCR (selective catalytic reduction) or particulate filters typically used to meet such standards.
